

International Biogas Study Tour

September 15 – 18, 2014

Tour information

IBBK Fachgruppe Biogas offers a 4-day study tour. The tour is taking place from September 15 – 18, 2014

The participants of the tour will get in contact with planners of biogas plants, components manufacturers and biogas plant operators as well as biogas plants with new or ground-breaking concepts or technology in Germany.

The tour will cover the following topics: (programm subject to change)

- Visit of an agricultural facility for treatment of chicken manure and district heating concept operating for 15 years.
- Visit of a bioenergy village with energy and heat supply based on local biomass including a rate of over 50% gas. About 40 buildings are connected to the district heating net (length: 2,5km).
- Biomethane installation with biogas upgrading. From 21.000 t of food leftovers and 11.000 t of liquid manure are being produced 22,5 Mio. kWh natural gas.
- Visit of a dry fermentation plant consisting of 5 digester tunnels with underground percolate storage tanks and an annual turnover of 15.000 t/a.
- Visit of a co-digestion biogas plant which is a complement to the industrial wastewater-treatment plant and sewage-sludge incinerator in an integrated waste-management system
- Visit of a municipal garage dry fermentation biogas plant with digestate treatment system, composting and a turnover of 25.000 t/a biowaste.
- Visit of a company which is focused on special machines for the construction of container and silo plants and sheet-metal machining. It provides everything from individual components to entire systems. An extensive product range serves to meet all requirements of industrial, agricultural and municipal waste disposal, as well as the storage and handling of solid, liquid and gaseous substances.

The Biogas Study Tour will be conducted in English/German and includes sight seeing and cultural aspects.
